Answers and Explanations

1) E

The main clue in this question is the phrase “playing his first professional concert at only seven years old.” This describes Beethoven’s musical skills and implies that he had great talent at a young age. The missing word describes what Beethoven was. A prodigy is someone who has great talent or ability at a very young age, so choice (E) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because a hack is a person who works solely for money. Nothing in the prompt implies that Beethoven played music only for money.

(B) is incorrect because a phenomenon is a rare or significant occurrence or event. Although it is not common to see child musicians as highly skilled as Beethoven was, this is too general in meaning to work in context. A phenomenon can be something besides a talented child.

(C) is incorrect because a spectacle is a notable or entertaining public display. Although it is not common to see child musicians as highly skilled as Beethoven was, this is too general in meaning to work in context. A spectacle can be something besides a talented child.

(D) is incorrect because a fluke is a mistake or stroke of luck. Nothing in the prompt implies that Beethoven’s skill was the result of a mistake.

2) D

The main clue in this sentence is the semicolon, which is used to link independent clauses that state similar information. This means that what Stephen’s parents “encourage him to pursue” is related to the fact that “they want to see him become rich and successful.” The missing word must therefore mean rich and successful. Since lucrative means producing a great deal of profit, choice (D) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because stressful means causing mental or emotional anguish. There is no logical relationship between having a career that is stressful and becoming “rich and successful.” Many stressful jobs do not lead to high earnings or wealth.

(B) is incorrect because worthwhile means important or worth the time and effort spent. There is no logical relationship between having a career that is worthwhile and becoming “rich and successful.” Many worthwhile and important careers do not result in high earnings or wealth.

(C) is incorrect because rewarding means providing satisfaction. There is no logical relationship between having a career that is rewarding and becoming “rich and successful,” since rewarding is not synonymous with making money.

(E) is incorrect because prestigious means inspiring respect and admiration. There is no logical relationship between a career that is prestigious and becoming “rich and successful.” Not all prestigious or high-status careers necessarily result in high earnings or wealth.

3) A

The main clue in this question is the word “although,” which means that two things are related in a negative or opposite way. The correct choice will set up an opposite relationship between how Dina feels “about the governor’s reelection campaign” and how Carla regards it. Passionate means showing strong feelings, while indifference is a lack of interest or concern. These are opposites, so choice (A) is correct.

(B) is incorrect because it does not provide a pair of opposites. Reckless means careless, while callousness is hard-heartedness or showing no sympathy. These words have no clear relationship.

(C) is incorrect because it does not provide a pair of opposites. Upset means unhappy or worried, while carelessness is negligence or a lack of care. These words have no clear relationship.

(D) is incorrect because it does not provide a pair of opposites. Exuberant means filled with lively energy and excitement, while enthusiasm is eagerness and enjoyment. These words are almost synonyms, not opposites of each other.

(E) is incorrect because it does not provide a pair of opposites. Exceptional means outstanding or very good, while zeal is great energy or enthusiasm. These words have no clear relationship.

4) C

The main clue in this question is the phrase “adding courses in linguistics.” This phrase explains how students can do what the missing word describes. By adding courses, one would be adding to “their studies,” so the missing word must mean add. Because supplement means to make something more complete by adding to it, choice (C) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because accelerate means to speed up. Nothing in the prompt implies that linguistics courses can make a student’s education go by faster.

(B) is incorrect because condense means to concentrate or shorten. Nothing in the prompt implies that linguistics courses can make a student’s education become shorter.

(D) is incorrect because prolong means to make longer. Nothing in the prompt implies that linguistics courses can make a student's education grow longer.

(E) is incorrect because duplicate means to make a second copy. Nothing in the prompt implies that linguistics courses can make a student's education double or be copied.

5) B

The main clue in this question is the phrase "after all," which links together clauses that state similar information. Here, the part of the sentence that contains "after all" is used to explain why the novelist's tone "could irk anyone." This means that the author's "manner" must relate to what "no one likes." Pompous means arrogant or affectedly self-important, while an egotist is someone who is self-conceited or arrogant. These words have similar meanings, so choice (B) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because it does not set up a logical relationship. Meek means submissive, while a genius is someone who is very smart. These words have no clear relationship.

(C) is incorrect because it does not set up a logical relationship. Standoffish means unfriendly, while a bore is someone who is dull and uninteresting. These words have no clear relationship.

(D) is incorrect because it does not set up a logical relationship. Arrogant means having an inflated or exaggerated view of oneself, while an optimist is someone who is hopeful and confident about the future. These words have no clear relationship.

(E) is incorrect because it does not set up a logical relationship. Assertive means having a confident and forceful personality, while a braggart is someone who brags or boasts about himself or herself. These words have no clear relationship, since an assertive person might not be a braggart.

6) C

The main clue in this question is the phrase "known for her patience and kindness." This phrase, like the missing word, describes Nurse Steele, so the missing word must likewise mean patient or kind. Because genial means friendly and cheerful, choice (C) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because boorish means insensitive or crude. This does not set up a logical relationship with the fact that Nurse Steele is "known for her patience and kindness."

(B) is incorrect because benign means harmless. Although this may describe Nurse Steele, nothing in the prompt implies that she is either harmful or harmless.

(D) is incorrect because irritable means easily angered. This does not set up a logical relationship with the fact that Nurse Steele is "known for her patience and kindness."

(E) is incorrect because contrary means oppositional or unfavorable. This does not set up a logical relationship with the fact that Nurse Steele is "known for her patience and kindness."

7) D

The main clue in this question is the phrase "hard work," which describes the "young man" in the stories. The missing word likewise describes the young man, so it must also mean hardworking. Because diligent means hardworking, choice (D) is correct.

(A) is incorrect because fortunate means lucky. This does not work because being lucky is not related to being hardworking.

(B) is incorrect because insolent means rude and arrogant. Nothing in the prompt implies that the "young man" in the stories is either rude or arrogant, since the prompt only implies that he is hardworking.

(C) is incorrect because ruthless means having no pity or compassion for others. Nothing in the prompt implies that the "young man" in the stories lacks compassion for others, since the prompt only implies that he is hardworking.

(E) is incorrect because negligent means careless. Nothing in the prompt implies that the "young man" in the stories is careless, since the prompt only implies that he is hardworking.

8) A

The main clues in this question are "cancer-stricken" and "unhealthy." The correct choice must describe the narrator's aunt's appearance as it relates to these two qualities. Both of these are characteristics describing someone who is ill. Gaunt means unhealthily or excessively thin, and it would describe someone who is sick, so choice (A) is correct.

(B) is incorrect because brawny means muscular or powerful. This word does not set up a logical relationship with "cancer-stricken" and "unhealthy."

(C) is incorrect because vigorous means strong or powerful. This word does not set up a logical relationship with "cancer-stricken" and "unhealthy."

(D) is incorrect because svelte means healthily trim or thin. This word does not set up a logical relationship with “cancer-stricken” and “unhealthy.”

(E) is incorrect because trim means thin or fit. This word not set up a logical relationship with “cancer-stricken” and “unhealthy.”
